

My name is Marc Dluger and I have taught at various two- and four-year colleges for the past few years. Primarily, I have taught both sections of the US History survey courses, a 20th Century US History class, a US Military History course, and, starting this semester, Western Civilization. I received my BA in History from the University of Southern California, my MA in American History from Roosevelt University, and my PhD in American History & Public History from Loyola University Chicago. The public history aspect allows me to work in museums, archives, documentary film making, and public policy. In my free time I enjoy sports and travel, usually trying to combine both at the same time.
